Bitumen Evaluation in the Grosmont Carbonate Reservoir: A Case Study of Wireline Technology Applications

Rob Badry¹ and Jason Smith²

¹Schlumberger, Calgary, Alberta, Canada
²Laricina Energy Ltd., Calgary, Alberta, Canada

Abstract

In this case study, magnetic resonance, dielectric dispersion, gamma ray spectroscopy, and cased hole pulsed neutron tools are used in conjunction with conventional porosity logs to calculate weight-percent bitumen in the Grosmont formation. These results are compared to weight-percent bitumen obtained using Dean Stark analysis of core samples.