Abstract

This presentation summarizes how the gas fields located in the rainforest of the Lower Urubamba were successfully developed by the Camisea consortium using technology and innovation in a complex social and environmental area with a great impact to the economy and contribution to the country. The presentation also examines the challenges of planning and logistics to become an icon of reference for all operations that take place in sensitive areas of Latin America. The average daily production is 1,600 MMSCFD of gas and 90,000 BPD of liquefied natural gas from the San Martín, Cashiriari, Pagoreni and Mipaya fields.
